

Oak tree at Lydeard Farm, Bishops Lydeard

Hello..

This is to inform you that unfortunately I have had to agree to the ‘monolithing’ of an oak tree at Lydeard Farm, down to about 10 metres, following a report by Atworth Arboriculture (attached) and my own visit a few weeks ago. It has extensive trunk base decay, caused largely by damage from livestock, which is very frustrating. The tree is close to the rear of Delta Rise. The remaining trees must be protected by fencing and a replacement oak will be planted in the near future.

Regards,

David
